Sponsored by the Orthopedic and Neurologic Physical Therapy Residency programs at A.T. Still University, Department of Physical Therapy

Course description and objectives

This program is designed primarily for people interested in or involved with clinical education (clinical instructors [CIs], center coordinators of clinical education [CCCEs], academic coordinators of clinical education [ACCEs]) and is recognized by APTA as a Clinical Instructor (CI) Education and Credentialing Program.

The program addresses issues of:

- preparing for physical therapy students during their clinical education experiences
- developing learning experiences
- supporting ongoing learning through questioning and effective feedback
- developing skills of performance evaluation
- identifying and managing students with exceptional situations
- identifying legal implications for clinical educators, including issues presented by ADA legislation

Successful completion of this entire program (didactic and Assessment Center) earn physical therapists and physical therapist assistants APTA Clinical Instructor Credentialing.

1.5 CEUs - 15 contact hours

Instructor

Lori Bordenave, PT, DPT, PhD, received her degree in physical therapy from St. Louis University in 1985, her doctor of physical therapy from A.T. Still University in 2007, and her PhD in 2016 from Nova Southeastern University. She is currently the director of the Doctor of Physical Therapy program and an associate professor in physical therapy at A.T. Still University. She was the academic coordinator of clinical education for 10 years, overseeing clinical placements and support of clinical instructors (CIs) and students. Prior to joining the faculty, she was a coordinator of clinical education for eight years at a hospital in Scottsdale, Arizona. Dr. Bordenave was credentialed as a trainer for the Level 1 CI credentialing course in 1998 and in 2007 she was credentialed as a trainer for the Level 2 CI credentialing course. Additionally, Dr. Bordenave has served on the clinical instructor education board from 2005-08 and currently serves on the clinical instructor education workgroup.

Tawna Wilkinson, PT, DPT, PhD, received her degree in physical therapy in 1999 and her post-professional doctor of physical therapy in 2004 from A.T. Still University. She completed her PhD in 2016 from Nova Southeastern University. Dr. Wilkinson currently serves as the director of clinical education and associate professor in physical therapy at A.T. Still University. She has been part of clinical education since 2007, overseeing clinical placements, supporting clinical instructors and students, and developing clinical partnerships. She became a certified clinical instructor in 2007 and completed the advanced certified clinical instructor training in 2008. She was credentialed as a trainer for the Level 1 CI credentialing course in April 2017. Dr. Wilkinson is active in national groups for clinical education interests and currently serving the National Consortium of Clinical Educators as co-chair of the Payment for Clinical Experience Task Force.
